CHINA IN ASEAN-LED MULTILATERAL FORUMS
Serene Hung

TABLE OF CONTENTS

List of Abbreviations

Chapter One: Introduction
I. A Changed Attitude toward Regional Multilateralism
II. The Thesis Question
III. Why ASEAN-led Forums?
IV. Hypotheses/Alternative Explanations
V. China’s Strategic Priorities

Chapter Two: The South China Sea Dispute
I. Explaining Chinese Motivations: Learning or Adaptation?
II. Testing the Hypotheses
III. Western Pressure as Catalyst for Establishing Bilateral Relations with ASEAN States
IV. 1995 Mischief Reef Incident
   China’s Assertiveness
   U.S. Mid-1995 Response to the Mischief Reef Incident
   Impact of U.S. Resolve on China’s ASEAN/SCS Policy
V. 1995-1996 Changing Regional Dynamics
   Beijing’s Re-calculations
   Impact of Regional Change on China’s ASEAN/SCS Policy
VI. No Relaxation in China’s Claim to Sovereignty
VII. Multilateral Negotiations on a Code of Conduct Initial Resistance
VIII. 1999-2000: Regional Changes
   Impact on Chinese Foreign Policy
IX. September 11: Regional Changes
X. The Declaration on Code of Conduct
   Exclusions From, and Additions To, the DCOC
XI. Debunking Learning
XII. Should the U.S. Worry about China’s Tactical Use of Multilateral Diplomacy?
Chapter Three: The ASEAN Regional Forum
I. Initial Wariness
II. China’s Changing Attitude towards Security Multilateralism
III. Explaining China’s Attitude Change
   Socialization
   Hedging Against Potential U.S. Encirclement
IV. Chinese Diplomacy in the 21st Century
V. Explaining China’s Tighter Embrace of Security Multilateralism
   Hedging Against Potential U.S.-led Encirclement
   The Shangri-La Dialogue and the SPC: China’s Attempt to Extrude the U.S. from Asia?
   Is Socialization an Alternative Explanation?
   Increasing Chinese Confidence
VI. Conclusion

Chapter Four: The ASEAN-China FTA and the East Asia Summit
I. ASEAN-China Free Trade Agreement
   Shaping the Regional Environment
II. East Asia Summit

Chapter Five: Conclusion and Policy Implications
   Policy Implications

Appendix: ASEAN-China, ASEAN-Japan, ASEAN-India, and ASEAN-U.S. Mechanisms