MPRE (Multi-State Professional Responsibility Exam)

Maryland now requires the MPRE. Graduating seniors should plan to take the next administration of the MPRE which will be held on Saturday, March 23, 2019.

- January 24, 2019 -- Regular Registration Deadline Fee: $125
- January 31, 2019 -- Late Registration Deadline Fee: $220

Registrations must be submitted by 11:59 p.m. eastern time on the registration deadline – no exceptions.

Saturday Sabbath Observers may apply with LSAC to take the exam on the designated alternate date, usually the following Monday. To apply, you must provide a letter to LSAC on official stationery from your cleric confirming your affiliation with a recognized religious entity that observes its Sabbath throughout the year on Saturday. Email a copy of the letter to LSAC at MPREInfo@LSAC.org. The letter must be received at LSAC by the late registration deadline or you will not be allowed to test.

The UMB Graduate School is sponsoring a GiveBackHack taking place February 1st-3rd. This weekend-long event invites community members to come together to develop sustainable solutions. Create a new team, or join an existing one in order to bring your social impact idea to life. At the end $2,000, and in-kind resources will be provided to further support ideas. Email twise@umaryland.edu to receive a code for 50% off your ticket(s).

Email twise@umaryland.edu for half-priced tickets.

Background:
Motivated by the 2012 tragedy in Sandy Hook and multiple tragedies that have occurred in the ensuing years, what has become known as the Hartford Consensus was convened to bring together leaders from law enforcement, the federal government, and the medical community to improve survivability from manmade or natural mass casualty events. The resulting injuries from these events generally present with severe bleeding which, if left unattended, can result in death. The participants of the Hartford Consensus concluded that by providing first responders (law enforcement) and civilian bystanders the skills and basic tools to stop uncontrolled bleeding in an emergency situation, lives would be saved. The first responder program has received very good response and is widely being used across the country. The next step is to focus on needs of civilian bystanders.

Need:
 Civilians need basic training in Bleeding Control principles so they are able to provide immediate, frontline aid until first responders are able to take over care of an injured person. Due to many situations, there may be a delay between the time of injury and the time a first responder is on the scene. Without civilian intervention in these circumstances, preventable deaths will occur.

Mission/Objective:
The American College of Surgeons Committee on Trauma is leading the effort to save lives by teaching the civilian population to provide vital initial response to stop uncontrolled bleeding in emergency situations. This will be accomplished by the development of a comprehensive and sustainable bleeding control education and information program targeted to civilians that will inform, educate and empower the 300+ million citizens of the United States.

The Hague Program in The Hague offers students a unique opportunity to live and learn at the heart of the international justice community. In 1899, the world’s first Peace Conference took place here. Currently, The Hague is home to more than 150 international legal organizations. Participants examine critical issues in international law and spend a month in the “International City of Peace and Justice” among the practitioners, courts, and tribunals that are making history today. Students are housed in spacious apartments in the center of The Hague, close to a variety of prominent Dutch landmarks such as the Peace Palace.
The Program is the product of collaboration between the War Crimes Research Office of American University Washington College of Law (AUWCL) — established to promote the development and enforcement of international criminal and humanitarian law — and the T.M.C. Asser Institute, one of the most prominent research institutes of international law in Europe.

COURSES

International Criminal Law: In Search of Accountability provides an introduction to international criminal law and explores the various ways in which national, international, and so-called “hybrid” criminal courts and tribunals have attempted to enforce criminal responsibility for serious violations of human rights and humanitarian law.

International Legal Approaches to Terrorism in the 21st Century examines counter-terrorism measures from an international and comparative law perspective and considers the interrelationship between these measures and the obligations of states under international human rights and humanitarian law.

In addition to AUWCL faculty members, instructors include judges, prosecutors, and other staff from the International Court of Justice (ICJ), the International Criminal Court (ICC), the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia (ICTY), the T.M.C. Asser Institute, and other organizations.

ACTIVITIES

Integrated into the program are visits to international tribunals and legal institutions, including the ICJ, ICC, and ICTY, where students have an opportunity to observe proceedings and speak to practitioners in the field. The program also includes a networking panel with practitioners in international criminal law. Participants will also have the opportunity to visit Amsterdam, and can use their other free weekends for trips to other parts of Europe.

INTERNSHIPS

Many students secure an internship after the program. For instance, students have interned with ICTY defense teams, the ICC, the Special Tribunal for Lebanon, and the International Bar Association’s IBO Monitoring Programme.
