DO YOU KNOW SOMEONE?
A Launch Your Life Speaker Series

This five-week speaker series reflects the University of Maryland, Baltimore’s commitment to health and well-being in a community of care and support.

If you know someone struggling with mental health and its stigma, let’s talk.

IN YOUR OWN VOICE—DEPRESSION
Oct. 4, Noon-1 p.m.
SMC Campus Center, 349

NAMI’s In Our Own Voice presentations change attitudes, assumptions and stereotypes by describing the reality of living with mental illness. People with mental health conditions share their powerful personal stories in this presentation, and engage with audience members to give them a better understanding of mental health.

TAKE CARE
Oct. 10, Noon-1 p.m.
Lexington Building, Room 2-111

Did you know perinatal depression affects 15-20% in all populations of pregnant and postpartum women? Other statistics show as many as 1 in 7 women are affected and is recommended to get screened at least once during the perinatal period. To learn more and to help support women in your lives join us in this riveting presentation.

LET’S TALK
Oct. 30, Noon-1 p.m.
Lexington Building, Room 3-111

Anyone can struggle with a mental health problem. As a family member or friend, do you sometimes feel helpless to do anything to be supportive? Join the EAP for an open, supportive discussion on how to support a family member or friend struggling with mental health issues. All UMB employees are welcome to attend.

REGISTER FOR THESE EMPOWERING PRESENTATIONS to learn how to cope, uplift, and educate yourself and others about available resources and services.

IN YOUR OWN VOICE—BIPOLAR
Oct. 18, Noon-1 p.m.
Lexington Building, Room 3-111

NAMI’s In Our Own Voice adds a critical perspective to the popular understanding of what people with mental illness are like. You will gain understanding that every person with a mental illness can hope for a bright future and will discover how it is possible to live a healthy life with a mental illness.

STRONG WOMEN
Oct. 24, Noon-1 p.m.
SMC Campus Center, 351

Get tips and learn how to prevent depression and anxiety in pregnancy focusing on women in the workplace. Join us in support of mental health and learn about resources and start talking towards a change. Presented by Women’s Mental Health Program.

“America and China: From Engagement to Strategic Competition”
United States policy toward China is undoubtedly and necessarily in a period of transition. The profoundly important accommodation reached in the early 1970s, which has largely shaped policy for almost 50 years, had great advantages for both powers. Both were freed from ideological competition. Rising China gained great riches from full participation in the economic system within the liberal international order. The United States, as a status quo power, continued its preeminent and advantageous role in the international order and hoped that China would become a supportive stakeholder in it. However, the hugely successful rising China now is reaching beyond mere economic growth. In pursuit of natural resources, it has developed an array of nations indebted and obligated to it. The Silk Road initiative creates a new set of dependencies and trade opportunities for China. It has aggressively expanded in the South China Sea, potentially influencing world trade and certainly intimidating smaller states. It continues military enhancements, espionage, efforts at technological advancement, and modifications of the international trading system itself. President Xi has declared bold targets of preeminence. A modified international order probably will diminish the advantages America enjoyed in the 1970s order. As we try to better understand the changing circumstances and strategies and fundamental interests of China and the United States today, we are extraordinarily fortunate to be joined by Dr. David M. Lampton who the International Relations Institute of the China Foreign Affairs University in Beijing has called “the most influential China watcher.”

Dr. Lampton received his B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees from Stanford University. He began his teaching career at Ohio State University, was the Founding Director of the China Policy Studies Program at the American Enterprise Institute, Founding Director of the China Studies Program at the Nixon Center (now the Center for the National Interest) in Washington, President of the National Council on U.S.–China Relations (1997-2006), and served as Professor and Chair of China Studies at the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies (1997-2018).

Professor Lampton has authored or edited significant works on the leaders of China following Mao, China’s internal policies, and U.S.–China relations. He is the author of numerous articles appearing in the most serious journals and newspapers of the United States and China. He has testified before Senate and House committees and has appeared on the most prestigious of interview shows. He has held leadership positions in numerous public service and professional organizations. We certainly look forward to benefiting from Professor Lampton’s wisdom with respect to this very critical stage in U.S.–China relations.

It is an honor and a great pleasure to welcome Professor Emeritus David M. Lampton to the Council once again.

Reservations for the address by Professor David M. Lampton, 9/27/18 may be made by mail, phone, fax, or email, or through the link on the event page on our website – www.bcfusa.org.
